DANIELSON

Wednesday the funeral of John Pershing Mullen, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Mullen, of Dayville, was held from their home, burial being in St. Joseph's cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Few who heard Father Reginald J. J. Walle, the British army chaplain who addressed the big war work rally in the town hall Monday evening, realize what he personally suffered during the war, in which he was twice desperately wounded, yet, after many months in hospitals, has the courage to give himself to the special work in which he is now engaged in such an impressive manner.

There will be special thought during the Sunday evening service of thanksgiving at St. James' church of the 125 members of the parish who are with the colors. Several of these young men have been wounded or gassed or have met with other misfortunes on the western front, but not one of the number has given his life, a fact that has sunk deep into the hearts of those who have so fervently prayed for their safe return.

Although Monday's victory celebration acted as a damper on the inauguration of the united war work campaign, the results obtained by the canvassing teams in the past two days have been encouraging. It will be necessary for all to be liberal, however, in their giving to the fund, which must reach a total of $9,000 in this district.

The war has not been exclusively occupying the attention of some of the villagers of the town of Killingly. Goodyear produced six candidates for investigation in the town court. A rambling affair started the trouble that led to Mr. and Mrs. John Golon being charged with a serious offense, and they are now in Brooklyn jail, in default of $500 bonds each, awaiting consideration of their case by the superior court.

It appears that John lost some money in a game of chance into which he entered. The happening was in a home in Goodyear. Later Mrs. Golon returned to where the man who is supposed to have won the money from her husband was staying, and the holder of the money was assaulted. A sewed-up pocket in which he had a large sum of money, estimated to be as much as $600, was cut away, it is alleged, and the money seized while the man was held helpless on the floor.

In acknowledging her part in the proceedings Mrs. Golon, who was assisted by her husband, says she got only $40. Later she admitted it was as much as $300, but officials of the town court allege that she must have got away with $600.

Mrs. Golon told officers that she had hidden what money she secured in an empty condensed milk can which she buried in the rear of the shed at her home, but the officers figure that she sent them on a wild goose chase when she told them that yarn. They went to Goodyear and dug all over the territory where she indicated that the money had been buried, but without finding it. The ground thereabout gave no indication that it had been disturbed recently.

Four other persons who were engaged in the gambling affair in which Golon first lost a sum of money were fined $5 and costs, amounting to about $17 each.

Writing from France to C. A. Hamilton of Railroad street, who was with him in the Spanish-American war, Corporal Carl Anderson of the 102d infantry, says:

I dare say you have heard by this time that I have been knocked out. Well, I have, and it sure did make me feel sore to get it from my own carelessness. After going through all the hardships and trials of trench warfare for six months steady, and then being deprived of the honor of going through the big drive.

Not getting into that drive sure was a big disappointment. I will tell you how I got hurt. I had a Very-high pistol under my cartridge belt and it was loaded for a barrage signal. I had the pistol at half-cock and while stooping over in the trench the trigger got caught on something and went off.

This cartridge had five stars, and I guess every one of them hit me in the leg. My clothing caught fire and if it had not been for some comrades near by I don't think I would be here now.

From a dressing station where I was taken I finally arrived at a mobile hospital. There I was operated upon and when I came to I was lying in bed in the ward.

The other did not make me sick at all. I came out of it just like coming out of a natural sleep. After being in that hospital two days, I was sent to a base hospital, stayed there about a month, and was then sent down where I am now. I got pretty badly burned up, Bert. It is now three months since I got hurt and I am still confined to my bed. I have had the best of care and treatment. The people at home need not worry about our wounded, for the nurses and doctors are doing everything they can to make them comfortable.

However, my burn is nearly healed now and I expect to be up and around before long. When a fellow gets wounded he leaves everything he owns behind. Excepting what is in his pockets, everything is left on the field.

I had a good shaving set and also some notebooks which I wanted to keep. But when a fellow gets wounded he doesn't think for the time being of such things. You remember Adlard Barbeau? He was among the missing in that fight we figured in last April.

Well, I had a diary of his which I was trying to keep so I got back to the states alive I could give it to his folks. But it went with my other possessions.

That April night was a hot affair. After the battle, while looking around among the dead bodies, one of the fellows in my company found Barbeau's diary. On looking through it they saw my name, so they gave it to me. (Private Barbeau was not killed but wounded and taken prisoner and is now in Germany.) I had been taking good care of the diary and wanted very much to keep it.

Well, Bert, we have got Fritz on the run, and we are going to keep him running until he gets to Berlin, and we will be right back of him even then. Of course we are having a-beat-up wounded and some of us will be pretty well camouflaged, but there is not a man here that is not glad he is taking part in this war.

Your old friend,
CORP. CARL ANDERSON.

Tag day for the war fund drive will be conducted by the junior class Saturday, Nov. 16. There is to be an inter-class contest during the present drive at K. H. S., for which Mr. Warren has offered a social as a prize to the class that succeeds in earning the largest amount in proportion to the number of members in the class. Last spring during the Y. M. C. A. drive, a social was offered by Mr. Warren to the class that went over the top. The present juniors, then sophomores, gave the play, "Up to Freddie, from which they cleared $30, making a total of over $200 for the class, thereby winning the social. This made the total amount given by K. H. S. $717. Following are the members of the junior class appointed to tag the different villages in the town of Killingly Saturday morning: East Killingly, Hannah Smith, Henry Hill, Eldred Elfgren and Howard Souler; Elmville, Hannora Killian; Dayville, Abbie Pray; Attawaugan, Dorothy Howard; Baitouville, Abbie Pray. Saturday afternoon and evening all of the class will tag Dan-

PUTNAM

Rev. Frank D. Sargent, 74, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city for 28 years and dean of the pastors of eastern Connecticut, died during the early hours of Wednesday morning at the Day Kimball hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks. The people of the city mourn the death of a clergyman, who in long years of service had won the esteem and love of the members of all denominations.

He returned to his pastorate Jan. 1, 1890. Continuing his pastoral work for a few months, he accepted a call to the Second Congregational church of Putnam, Sept. 1, 1890. Ever since that distant date he has labored in this city, building constructively his church work and making ever increasingly felt his influence for good among all his fellow citizens.

Rev. Mr. Sargent's life activities before coming to this city indicated the broadness and efficiency of his vision of life. At one period he became personally interested in the putting through of a telephone line between Townsend and Nashua, N. H., and to the accomplishment of this end he brought into play his great energy for the accomplishment of results. He was largely instrumental in having this telephone line established over a distance of 20 miles, went out and secured subscribers and pledges of financial support, collected funds for the project and even assisted in putting up the line.

Fraternally, before coming to Putnam, Rev. Mr. Sargent was a member of the United Order of the Golden Cross and became grand commander of the fraternity in New Hampshire, receiving also other high honors from the organization. During his long pastorate in Brooklyn he gave much attention to educational matters and for 12 years was superintendent of schools in that place. In this city he was a member of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows.

Though he was especially well informed on matters pertaining to political affairs and public policies in the United States, Rev. Mr. Sargent indulged barely at all in political affairs. He was first of all a churchman, with the welfare of all humanity at heart.

He was a forceful preacher and public speaker, particularly welcomed by audiences in this city because of his ability to state very clearly and concisely that which he wished to say.

place his home. No less than 20 calls came to him during the period of these pastorates, but though he gave some of them serious consideration, he eventually declined each and every one. Finally his health became impaired and he went west, remaining for a period of six months, during which he made careful studies of many things of interest in the sections where he visited, these studies afterwards being the basis for an interesting series of lectures.

and to state in convincing manner. The people of Putnam, irrespective of creed, were fond of him, and the many years that he had been in the ministry here lent a special dignity to his place among the pastors.

October 23, 1879, the day following his ordination, Rev. Mr. Sargent was united in marriage with Miss Emma S. Taylor, daughter of Deacon S. S. and Rachel Hill Taylor of Dunstable, Mass. Mrs. Sargent survives her husband, with three children, Miss Bertha Louise Sargent, at home, Miss Florence Gertrude Sargent, member of the faculty at Bryn Mawr, and Harold Sargent of Worcester.

Fifty-nine registrants, nearly all British subjects, came to this city on Wednesday morning to undergo their physical examinations, which have been ordered made, notwithstanding the armistice terms, by the war department, but all had to be ordered back home because Dr. J. E. Kent, the chairman of the local board and its examining physician, was so ill as to be unable to carry out the examination. Other physicians could not be obtained. While it is unfortunate for the registrants and generally regretted by all concerned, the registrants must return here at some future date for their examinations.

A new order received Wednesday by the local board cancels the order not to send questionnaires to registrants who are 18 years of age. These registrants will be required to fill out the questionnaires, but they are members of the only class that will be required so to do.

At Holy Trinity church in Pomfret Wednesday morning, Rev. J. J. Elty was celebrant of a high mass of requiem at the funeral service for Miss Alice Hickey, for 27 years a clerk in the B. D. Bugbee store in this city. Miss Hickey had been ill at home for a considerable period before her death.

After-the-war benefits are at once beginning to make themselves felt in this city. The Dean division of the Otto Heilmann company, manufacturers of phonograph pins and mill pins, is among the concerns that will be allowed at once to increase its normal peace-time business, from the 60 per cent. capacity which it has been operating upon recently to 75 per cent. of normal. The organization of this concern was badly disrupted a short time ago by the taking away of 34 of its employees for engagement elsewhere on pressing war work. Now some of these men will be permitted to return to their old positions. Frank Coss, chairman for the community labor board for this district and organizer of the public service reserve, said at his office in the Union block Wednesday morning that the Dean Pin company, as it is known here, would be permitted to increase its so-called peace time business by 25 per cent.

over the 50 per cent. restriction under which it has been operating.

Indications are that the Windham County corn fair scheduled to be held in this city Thursday, Nov. 21, will be even better than last year, when it was inaugurated by the Farmers' association and proved a big success. Twenty-eight entries have been received by County Agent B. W. Ellis for the 50-bar exhibits and these exhibits are now being given the germination test. Prizes that include pure bred Berkshire soy and money, in various sums, will go to the winners in the corn exhibits. Grange exhibits of grain are also expected to prove of special interest at the fair.

In the Home Economics section of the fair the exhibitors will show many products of the kitchen, including Johnny cakes, quick breads, steamed brown bread, cornmeal desserts, cornmeal cakes, hulled corn, etc. etc. Winners in each division will receive prizes.

East Haddam.—The demand for cordwood far exceeds the amount being cut, as woodchoppers are hard to procure. The number of small coasting schooners seen on the river this past season reminds one of the days when the brownstone industry was at its height.

CONSTANT PAIN AFTER EATING

The Tortures of Dyspepsia Corrected by "Fruit-a-lives"

St. Martin's
"For two years, I suffered tortures from Severe Dyspepsia. I had constant pains after eating; pains down the sides and back; and horrible bitter stuff often came up in my mouth. I tried doctors, but they did not help me. But as soon as I started taking 'Fruit-a-lives' (or Fruit Liver Tablets) I began to improve and this medicine, made of fruit juices, relieved me when everything else failed."
